Hongkong, November 3rd 1898. On the 23rd October Reuter telegraphed that a doctor's assistant at the laboratory over a basket which formed part of a haw for the culture of the plague bacillus at Vienna had died of plague and that two nurses had been attacked. As there has that he had dropped one. The hawker and been no further telegram in reference to the affair we may assume that the measures the owner and defendant to the Police Station. which would in ordinary course be taken to prevent the disease spreading have been effectual. The incident, however, coming - so soon after the spread of the disease from Dr. Yersin's laboratory at Ngatran affords a striking illustration of the danger of experimenting with the plague bacillus. At Ngatrang, in Annam, the disease is still raging, according to the latest Tonkin papers received, notwithstanding the presence of four doctors, two of whom have been sent from Cochin-China and two from Tonkin; and the coasting steamers calling at the port carry European passengers only. The Avenir du Tonkin, in concluding an article on the quarantine regulations there lying unproductive in France or earning enforced, says :- "The plague has been "introduced to Ngatrang through Dr. "YERSIN'S institute. More than a "month has passed and it has not been "stamped out, notwithstanding the celedi brated serum whose curative virtues were "vouched for in a letter from Monseigneur "CHAUSSE. We are thus becoming, in "Annam and Tonkin, the laughing-stock of "the medical world." Some sympathy must be entertained with the brilliant young carant against whom the finger of scorn is thus pointed, more especially as he showed himself when in Hongkong to be morbidly sensitive to anything savouring of criticism, | ARRIVAL OF THE EMPEROR AND however friendly might be the spirit in which it was offered. The personal element in the matter is of no consequence, however; what is of importance is the illustration afforded of the danger that may arise from laboratory experiments. An inoculated rat or mouse escapes and an epidemic may be started that may cost thousands or hundreds of thousands of human lives. The same result may be brought about even without the escape of the diseased animal, say by a healthy animal coming sufficiently near to the inoculated animals' place of confinement and carrying the germs of the disease away with it. A Commission has been appointed to conduct a scientific investigation in connection with the plague in India, and the danger of the disease being land, Or., from Japan on the 31st ultime. spread by means of laboratory experiments is no doubt one of the points to which its attention will be directed, seeing that there | pore of or about the 17th instant.

NEGLECTING A NOTICE OF THE SANITARY BOARD.

HEAVY PENALTIES. Hajes Mahomed Sodcok, of 27, Gage Street has had to pay heavily for his dilatoriness in parrying out the directions of the Sanitary Board. At the Magistracy yesterday Mr or their being approached by animals of their Duggan, clerk to the Magistrate, produced the depositions relating to a case heard on the 12th September against defendant for not complying with a notice served upon him by the Sanitary Board to effect certain improvements in his drains. A fine of $25 was imposed and an order made that the work was to be completed within one month, defendant being warned that he would be liable to a penalty for every day after the 12th Oct. that the work was not completed. Mr. Duggan also produced the depositions in another case against defendant which was heard on the 18th of October for neglecting to comply with the order of the Magistrate of Sep. 12th. In this case defendant was fined $10 for every day which had elapsed since the expiration ofthe order—a total of $60-and he was further informed that he would be liable to a further fine of $10 a day during his default. On the 27th October a memorandum was received from the Sanitary Board stating that the work was completed the previous day. Mr. Looker, who appeared for defendant, said he had asked an architect to come and give evidence as to the time taken to complete the work, but he had just received a note from him saying he did not wish to be mixed up in the case. He should have liked to have got some other architect.

Commander Hastings-Your client got an order to complete cortain drains. He did not do it and he was fined $25 and ordered to complete the work within 30 days. He did not do it, but as soon as he has $10 a day to pay he gots it done in 13 days. Mr. Looker said his client did not execute the drainage himself. He had to rely on the Chinese contractors, who had to rely on the people who supplied the pipes. The Chinese contractor said he commenced A Tokyo press despatch of the 24th October, the work on the 16th September, but he had pipes, which were not delivered until the 19th October. It took him two days to put deeply laid plot against the principle of reform, livered. While he was waiting for the pipes he got on with the work as far as he could. Mr. Looker repeated that his client had to rely on Chinese contractors, adding that there was no evidence that it he had gone to some of the contractors approved by the Government the work would have been done sooner. He submitted that the work having been completed a small fine per day in-stend of the full ponalty would meet the case. Commander Hastings-There is not one redeeming feature about the case. You will be fined $10 a day for each day in default-total

STREET ROW OR RIOT?

TO THE EDITOR OF THE " DAILY PRESS." SIR,-Will you kindly allow me a few lines to say that I quite agree with Mr. Smith's view of the case. There was no "riot" in the ordinary acceptation of that term by "those who know." It. was a more "street row' brought about, so far as I can learn, by some of the Shameen police ordering away a boat from the creek, and themselves first throwing some stones at the boat to assist its departure, and just to show that there was no ill-feeling! I cannot, of course, vouch for the accuracy of this statement; but certain it is that if you go round knocking. people on the head with brickbats you can dly expect anything else but a disturbance Doubtless some rowdies joined in with the boatpeople in hopes of some fun; but as Mr. Smith truly remarked, the whole thing vanished as a vapour directly the officials appeared and blew their trumpets. In fact, as a man remarked to me recently, if our bold Volunteers had rushed to bed instead of to arms the whole rampus would have exploded of itself. As to what constitutes a riot, everything is relative in this world and even one solitary individual sometimes makes a riot when he stops out too late at night and infulges in what is at good for him; but this, or the assemblage of a handful of "small boys" and rowdies, is a very different thing from a general rising acquiesced in by all classes of the community. That no ill-feeling of any account prists is shown by the fact that foreigners—globetratters and others are daily and freely entering the city without molestation. Why then so much excitement? It is bad enough when it comes in real earnesta riot, I mean—but let us not hasten it by our own impotuosity and engerness for the fray Some may say "What's the use of being a Volunteer if you've no chance of distinguishing may come and you may be the first to fall desire. It was doubtless too bad of Mr. Smith to detract from the military glory of our Volunteers, who, of course, are all brave fellows and ready to sacrifice their lives for the good of the community; but really the truth must out in a teapet" which might perhaps have been avoided by a little tact and common sense at the commencement.—I remain &c. ANOTHER EYE-WITNESS. Canton, 2nd November, 1898.

INVESTIGATING THE PLAGUE The following telegrams appear in the

Rangoon Gazette:-

Allahabad, 13th October. The Secretary of State has formally sanctioned the appointment of a Commission to make an investigation of a scientific character in India. with regard to the plague. The main questions with which the Commission will be concerned are the origin of the different outbreaks of plague, the manner in which the disease is communicated, and the effects of the curative seramand preventive inoculation. The Commission will be composed of three scientists and two civil officers of Indian experience. Mr. J. P. Howett, Secretary in the Home Department, and Mr. A. Cumino, C.S., who soted as Plague Commissioner in Bombay, are the Indian officers selected. There will also be a Sperctary to the Commission, but he has not yet. been nominated. Allahabad, 14th October.

The Plague Commission which has been ordered to assemble in India will spread its work over the cold season, visiting various infected areas and collecting the evidence regarding the course taken by the epidemic. Simla, 14th October.

Mr. Hewett, Home Secretary, whose leave at home expires early next month, has been appointed to the Commission of experts which will be sent out shortly from England to investigate the scientific aspects of the plague question. Mr. Cuming, the Bombay Plague Commissioner, is also appointed to this Commission.

THE BRITISH MINISTER'S DIFFICULTIES.

The following exposition of the methods of British and Russian diplomacy in Peking is contributed to a home paper by a gentleman who has been long, and still is, a resident in China:-The oritical state of affairs at Peking has of late been attracting public attention. popularly supposed Russia has outwitted us diplomatic action, and some irritation has conrepresentative in China. As a matter of fact, we have not been outwitted. The present The mandate announcing this met with unistaff. Why then, it may be asked, has Russia apparently rained is prestige at the expense of Grent Britain. A complete answer may be obtained by comparing the difference between the two systems of diplomacy. On the one hand, lavish bribery, open threats, and a general aim to render China defenceless; on the other, a straightforward policy of give and take, fair words, and a desire to assist China in standing by herself. No interview, of however important and private a nature which takes blace between our representative and the Tsungli Yamen goes unreported to the Russian Legation at Peking. The Russian representative is kept posted as to the times of such interviews, and s ready to proceed at a moment's notice to the Chinese Ministers with the whole of their recantinterview at his finger ends. On arrival he will carole or bully as occasion may serve.

It must be remembered that in the majority of official interviews in China servants are prosent. Incredulous, too, as it may seem, it is a matter of common occurrence for the officials themselves to sell, either directly or indirectly, any information worth buying. This practice of buying and selling information is notorious in Peking and elsewhere. During the last decade polo has made aston ishing progress and has vastly increased in fayour alike with players and spectators. It is only necessary to watch during the season any important match at Hurlingham or Ranelagh in order to realize the fact. Either side has its zealous partisans, and the teams cannot complain that their skill is not appreciated. dashing run down the ground, the unobtrusive stroke which saves a goal or enables a friend to win one, dexterons passing, smart riding-off, all receive their meed of appleuse, and fair ladies are not backward in expressing their approval of brilliant feats of horsemanship. The rivalry between the various clubs and regimental teams has grown to a high pitch, and pole bids fair to take a very prominent place among British national sports. Nor is it strapge that this should be the case. Rather one may wonder that a game so well suited to the sporting tastes of Englishmen was only introduced to this country during the last quarter of a century, for pole had its origin in remote days of antiquity. was played in Persia 2,500 years ago, and certain parts of Hindustan and its dependencies has been popular for centuries. > A feature of the past season was the formation of a County Pole Association, having for its object in the meantime the management of the County Cup tournament. It was manifestly impossible that all the ties could continue to be decided at Hurlingham, the headquarters of the game. The Hurlingham authorities already have more than sufficient claims on their time and grounds, and, it may be added, of late years their arrangements in regard to the County Cup have not been altogether satisfactory. The importance able and energetic, and controls a competent of festering pole in the provinces cannot be overestimated. It is from them that we may hope to see the ranks of good players at Hurlingham and Ranalagh recruited, and with the growth of provincial polo a marked increase may be expected in the number of players of the first strength. with a consequent addition to the proportion of first-class matches. The clubs concerned have now taken the management of their own affairs into their own hands, and the new association is likely, ere many years are over, to exercise wide-spread control and influence over the fortunes of polo in the provinces. Among first-class tournaments the Open

Champion Cup at Hurlingham ranks first in traditional, importance; Rugby teams were victorious both in 1897 and in 1898. To the All Ireland Open Cup, usually decided in Dublin during the Horse Show week, may be assigned second place, while the Ranelegh Open Challenge Cup, although only instituted last year, may be placed third. These competitions are open to any teams, civilian or military, from any quarter of the globe. The Inter-Regimental tournament has already been referred to incidentally, and it is not going beyond the mark to state that it excites more interest and enthusiasm than any other event in the world of polo. It was held for the first time in 1878, just one year subsequent to the institution of the Open Cup at Hurlingham, and season by season the trophy was carried off by Lancer or Hussar regiments; the 7th Hussars winning four times and the 9th Lancers three times in succession. The day of the heavy cavalry was to arrive at last. In 1897 the 3rd Inniskilling Dragoons vanquished the 10th Hussars in the final, and again this summer the same regiment proved too strong for the 13th Hussars. This match between light and heavy cavalry resulted in one of the finest exhibitions of polo ever witnessed. At the outset it seemed to inexperienced onlookers that the light team of Hussars could possess little chance of success against the formidable quartet opposed to them. Right gallantly did the 13th strive for the honour of their corps. Often as the Inniskillion men attacked. Captain Maciaren-perhaps the finest back player of the day, in or out the service-was never at fault, and the result of the game (one goal to nil) shows how equal were the opposing forces. For the Dragoon team their captain Major Rimington, is a tower of strength. A finished horseman, he understands all the finesse of the game, has already led his players to other successes this year, and doubtless will do so in the future. The county cup tournament is another important fixture which this year; for the first bime, was held away from Harlingham. In future it will be played on the ground of a difforent club each season. The capital ground at Edenmark was selected for the purpose this year, and the first County Cup played for under the new rules was won by Chislehurst. Other tournaments of less importance are the All Treland Regiment Challenge Cup, instituted in 1886: the Ranelagh Subalterns' Cup, won in 1897 and 1898 by the Royal Horse Guards (the Blues), as keen players as any in the service; the annual match between Hurlingham and Ranelagh; the Hunt Cup and the Novices' Cup, both played at Ranclagh; the Social Clubs tournament at Hurlingham. The last three events were started only last year, but they promise to be very popular with the classes to whom they appeal This slight sketch of the progress of modera nole would be incomplete without some reference to the part played by the Hurlingham Club in its history. It was the committee at Hurlingham who, so to speak, took charge of land. They constructed an excellent groundpower to encourage and foster the new pastime.
